Overview

What is customs status in Estonia?

Customs status determines the taxation of goods, application of commercial policy measures and the completion of customs formalities, depending on whether they are Estonian or foreign goods. Estonian goods lose the customs status of Estonian goods when the goods are taken out of the customs territory.

How TARIC is implemented in Estonia?

For the implementation of TARIC Estonia has adopted an Estonian Customs Tariffs Code, which consists both from measures of Community and from Estonian state measures (e.g. value added tax, excises, internal restrictions). By the import from third countries customs taxes will be implemented, which are based on TARIC.

Does Estonia belong to the European Union?

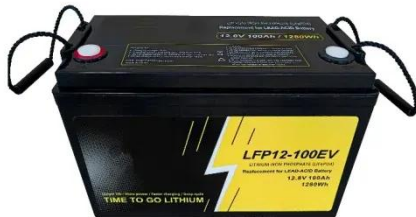

From 1st of May 2004 Estonia belongs to the common customs union of EU. The existence of customs union is guaranteed by the loss of customs taxes, quantitative restrictions and boarder control within the European Economic Community.

Does Estonia have a free zone?

It allows economizing the current assets. Although the taxes mentioned before will be refunded in case of importing goods outside a free zone, the positive effect coming from saving both time and current assets remains. In Estonia a free zone has been established to Muuga (near Tallinn), Sillamäe (North-East Estonia) and Valga (South Estonia).
