Overview

Is Greece ready for a battery energy storage system in 2025?

In 2025, Greece has accelerated its plans for utility-scale Battery Energy Storage Systems (BESS), signalling a shift in policy, financing, and market expectations. However, while the scale of ambition is high, there are several tensions emerging—especially around the move toward unsponsored (merchant) projects.

Does Greece need a battery energy storage system?

Greece has initiated a series of competitive tenders to bolster its energy storage infrastructure, aiming to integrate significant battery energy storage systems (BESS) into its electricity grid. These tenders are part of a broader strategy to enhance grid flexibility and support renewable energy integration.

How many MW of Bess are there in Greece?

As of early 2025, Greece has approximately 100 MW of operational BESS, comprising a small number of FTM (front-of-the-meter) projects and pilots developed prior to the 2023 tenders. Several additional systems became operational in 2024, but the bulk of large-scale storage capacity remains under development.

Is Greece at a turning point with battery energy storage?

Greece in 2025 is at a turning point with Battery Energy Storage. The government's shift toward large unsponsored, merchant BESS with priority grid connection reflects confidence that market conditions — especially curtailment pressures — are making subsidised models less necessary. Yet that confidence comes with risk.
